

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

"THAT SAME OLD COON."—Our friend Foster, who can keep a hotel and who does keep one, on Tuesday last turned his attention to the business of hunting game. He was accompanied by a Mr. McCartney, who has been sojourning in our midst "a few days," and between the two they had one shot-gun. On arriving at the woods near Cresson, the party separated. Foster cast about him for a few minutes, and soon discovered on the limb of a tall tree, what he supposed to be a wild-cat. He immediately summoned his companion, who, on arriving, took aim and fired, and down came a coon. (Foster then saw clearly that he had been mistaken in supposing that the coon was a wild-cat.)—Looking up again, another coon was seen on a higher branch of the same tree.—This coon was brought down by the same process as the first. Not satisfied, the party again looked up, and—strange to say—on the very tip-top of the same tree, another coon was seen to display his magnificent proportions. It required five shots (a great many shots to each shot) to bring this last-named coon to the earth; but when he did come, "Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen!" Foster and his companion looked yet again, but in vain; the third coon was the charm.—Several squirrels now had the impudence to make themselves conspicuous in that locality, but so elated were our friends with their success in the business of capturing coons, that they treated the squirrels with supreme contempt, not caring to waste their ammunition on such small game. The coons were then unceremoniously gathered up, and brought home to the Arcade, where they remained on exhibition until yesterday morning. They were then respectfully disrobed of their outer garments, and "left naked to their enemies," but what afterwards became of the flesh of the varmints we really can't say, for we solemnly assure our readers that not one ounce of it found its way to our Sanctum. If any of our readers should doubt any part or parcel of this statement, we can only advise them to call round at the Arcade, where the coon skins are visible to this day.

HUNTING EXCURSION.—Having learned from what we considered reliable authority, that some of our neighboring forests were literally alive with game, we, in company with our friend, J. H. Campbell, Esq., on Tuesday last, laid aside all worldly business, and arming ourselves to the teeth, sallied forth on a mission of death and destruction. Our start was an early one, and the road taken was that which leadeth to "ye ancient town of Beulah." Arriving at the outskirts of the place, we turned off to the left, and from that time until the sun had almost made "a glorious set," we amused ourselves in traversing the hills and dales which abound in that delightful region, holding ourselves in readiness at all times to vanquish every varmint that might have the hardihood to cross our path. After a full day's work, however, we came to the deliberate conclusion that the war of extermination upon which we had entered, had proven to be but a partial success, giving us little honor and much less profit. But, as "to the victors belong the spoils," we gathered up all that we had taken, and returned home—modestly entering our town by the back streets.

As matter of interest to our numerous readers, we subjoin the following as the grand result of that day's work:

Table with columns for 'KILLED' and 'WOUNDED'. Lists various animals like Grey Squirrels, Black do, Pine do, Ground do, Sap Suckers, Wood Lizards, and their counts.

(We have been unable to ascertain the exact number of the missing, inasmuch as under this head were comprehended every variety of game that we didn't exactly see—that is to say, that were among the missing. But we state that there was an incredible number of squirrels, pheasants and blue-jays shot and missed.)

At the State Fair of Ohio, at Xenia, Sept., 1859, the Commercial Schools of Ohio and Pittsburgh, contested the Premiums for best Business and Ornamental Writing. The Iron City College was again victorious, eclipsing all on their ground.—Pittsburgh Ev'ng Chronicle.

BE CAREFUL.—As now is the season when conflagrations do most occur, from the fact that, since cold weather has set in, fires are being kindled in chimneys not used since the beginning of summer, and many consequently being out of repair, too much caution cannot be taken in seeing that you are secure from their ravages. Examine well the condition of your flues before putting up stoves; see that everything about them is in working order—or you may repent of it too late.—The hard-earned savings of a lifetime may be swept off at one fell blow, and you and your family be reduced to poverty—left to begin anew the contest with the stern realities of an unfeeling world. Above all, you should get your property insured. You would then have something left to fall back upon, something to give you a new start in life, in case of such an event happening. Don't you perceive?

DAILY PAPER.—Maj. Thomas A. Maguire and Col. John G. Given—two of Cambria's noblemen—who recently went West, have turned up at Davenport, Iowa, as editors and publishers of the Daily Democrat and News. We have seen a number of their paper, and need only say that, in appearance as well as in matter, it is entirely in keeping with the high character which Messrs. M. & G. have heretofore sustained among the People of our State as editors and publishers. We wish them abundant success.

P. S. If our friends should desire to exchange with The Alleghanian, we will be happy to accommodate them, not caring to charge them the difference in price between their daily and our weekly.

WHERE TO GET STOVES.—E. Glass, of the Ebensburg Foundry, has always on hand, and for sale, an extensive assortment of these cold-weather luxuries, both of his own manufacture and from the city. His stock also comprises plows, plow-points, thrashing-machines, and other articles generally manufactured in a Foundry. He sells cheap.

George Huntley, of the Hardware Store, has also just received a large lot of Stoves, and other needful articles in his line, to which he invites the attention of purchasers. He sells cheap, too.

So that, when you wish to buy a stove, or anything that way, call on one of the above, and you will be suited to a nicety, both in quality and price.

A PRESENT.—During a recent visit to the miniature city of Wilmore, we called in to see our friend, John McColgan, Esq., and found him engaged as usual in the business of supplying his numerous customers with cheap Goods. The weather being cold, and the fact of a ten-mile drive staring us in the face, we concluded to invest in a pair of gloves. After an examination of the stock in that line, we made what we consider a happy selection. But when we came to sock up—John wouldn't take "nary red." For his kindness he has our thanks; and we assure him that the gloves have several times since kept our hands warm—but not as warm as his heart.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—Winter is coming—and with its advent will be a demand for good Boots and Shoes. Those who have not yet made their purchases in this line, should do so forthwith. Meshac Thomas, on High street, opposite the Post Office, has a good supply of these articles on hand, which he will dispose of very cheap. Thomas B. James has also opened a shop in the western end of town, where his friends are requested to give him a call. They have each a corps of good workmen in their employ, and being masters of their art themselves, are competent to give entire satisfaction.

JOHNSTOWN TIN AND STOVE DEPOT.—We take pleasure in announcing to our readers that Herrington & Co., have just received at their tin and stove depot, a large stock of stoves and tinware of all kinds, which they will sell as cheap, wholesale or retail, as can be purchased in the city. Any of our Merchants wishing to buy a good stock of such articles, will do well by calling upon our friends in Johnstown. They will insure every article that is taken away from their store to be of good material, and made in the neatest and most workmanlike manner. Advertisement next week.

SNOW.—As we went to press last week, it was snowing briskly. The skiff which then fell, however, left about as soon as it came. But on Saturday last, we had a supply of the article which lasted over Sunday, during which time the air was remarkably cold. Since then Old Sol has made his appearance occasionally, and the weather has been rather pleasant.

BEARS.—Three or four of these noxious varmints were seen during last week, within a short distance of this place. A number of the sharp-shooters of our town and township went out with a fixed determination of bringing them to market, but they didn't altogether succeed in effecting their purpose. There was some talk of having a regularly organized bear hunt, but we believe it has all ended in talk.—These bears might be taken captive, if they were surrounded after the manner that Paddy did the stump.

NEW GOODS.—A. A. Barker has just received, at the new building he has lately erected, on High street, one of the largest and most extensive, and cheapest and most varied assortment of Dry Goods, Groceries, etc., ever brought to Ebensburg. It will be perceived, by reference to his big double-column advertisement, found elsewhere, that he fully understands the beauties of the sublime science of advertising, as well as the art of catering successfully to the tastes of the public—which fact alone speaks volumes in his praise.

LET THERE BE LIGHT.—Thomas Devine, Esq., the gentlemanly proprietor of the Ebensburg Drug Store, has, in connection with his other business, opened out an establishment for the manufacture of Candles. Tom has the reputation of never doing things by halves, and we know that he makes good candles, from the fact that we have tried them. He is prepared to sell by the box or single pound, and a little cheaper than can be bought elsewhere. Purchasers should make a note of this.

MARRIED.—At the residence of Mr. A. Blain, in this place, on the 18th inst., by Rev. S. E. Babcock, Mr. Annanias Fortune to Miss Mary Lorimer, all of Johnstown.

Our prayer is, that Fortune may always smile upon this most Fortune-ate pair.—But it will be hardly possible for them to sail entirely over life's fretful current without having an occasional little Miss-Fortune.

DICKENS' NOVELS.—Another number of these deservedly popular works was issued on last Saturday, by the enterprising firm of T. B. Peterson & Bros, who are at present engaged in republishing them in pamphlet form. Everybody should purchase the whole series, as the price—five dollars for the twenty-eight volumes—is within the reach of all.

LEFT TOWN.—Our friend John D. Hughes has left Ebensburg, and gone to Johnstown to try his fortunes among the citizens of that romantic village. John made the best Burgess our town has had for many a day—was a good neighbor—and has our best wishes for his success in his new place of business.

DEPARTED.—Our old friend L. S. Montgomery, formerly of Johnstown, has taken up his abode, in Milton, Pa., for the purpose of opening out a Grocery. He leaves behind many warm friends in this place, who will mourn over his departure. He has our best wishes. May he long live to enjoy the pleasures of this world.

POTATO ROT.—Some of our exchanges speak of the potato rot as having done some damage in the eastern portions of the State. We have had some reports of the kind relative to the crops in our own neighborhood, though we believe they have, as a general thing, escaped the ravages of the "devouring element."

WOOD, MORRELL & Co.—The advertisement of this well-known firm will be found in another column. Praise at our hands in their behalf is unnecessary, for everybody knows they have the largest store, sell more goods, and at lower rates, than any other store in Johnstown. They deserve to be, and are, well patronized.

FASHIONABLE TAILOR.—T. I. James, (late of the firm of Hughes & James,) informs our readers this week that he has commenced business "on his own hook." He is a good workman, and will, no doubt, have plenty of customers.

LYCEUM.—The question for discussion at the Ebensburg Lyceum on Friday evening next, is: Resolved, That General Harney was justifiable in taking possession of the Island of San Juan.

TO THE LADIES.—Miss Ann Doherty, has just returned from the city with a large lot of Fancy Goods of all kinds.—Ladies give her a call. See advertisement in another column.

INTERESTING.—The story on the outside of this paper, by Alfred Jingle, Esquire. It has the jingle of the true metal.
